WALKER-HIGGS.

The New Methodist Church the Scene of a Charming Wedding.

A very large assemblage of admiring friends gathered at the new Methodist church last night to witness the marriage of two popular young people, reared in Bryan and known to everybody in the community. The bride was Miss Sallie Higgs, and the groom Mr. Claude Glen Walker. Rev. E. L. Shettles was the officiating minister and used the beautiful service of the Methodist church. The church was tastefully decorated with palms, ferns and other pot plants and flowers, and presented a brilliant scene.

Miss Mae Cole officiated at the organ and Miss Zuber sang "You," with wonderful sweetness. Lohengren's Wedding March was the processional. The ushers, Dr. W. H. Lawrence and Mr. Walter Coulter, led the way to the altar, followed by Miss Effie Higgs, Maid of Honor, and Mr. John F. Ettle, best man, and the bride and groom. After the ceremony the members of the wedding party passed out in reverse order to the notes of Mendelssohn's march, and were driven to the home of the bride's mother, where a reception was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Walker. Many beautiful presents were in evidence and congratulations were not wanting. A salad course and cream and cake were served.

The Hollman string band supplied music during the evening. In the cake cutting Miss Pena Zuber got the ring and the dime, Dr. Lawrence got the needle and John Ettle the button.

The bride's dress was of castor silk voile trimmed in embroidered chiffon and duchess lace. Miss Effie Higgs wore castor silk poplin with antique trimmings.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. B. P. Higgs, and a young lady of many graces and accomplishments. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Walker, and for many years has held a responsible position in W. J. Coulter's dry goods house. He has good business qualifications and is a young man of fine character.

J. M. Berry and granddaughter of Corsicana and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McMillan of Calvert were here to attend the wedding.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM FOR BRYAN.

A communication that appears elsewhere in this paper, from a Willow Hole correspondent, shows a state of affairs that should be very seriously considered by the people of Bryan. At the recent good roads meeting held by the Business League, a proposition that a special road tax be voted to build up our county roads, was discouraged and turned down. In the light of facts that are coming to light, to wit, the loss of trade by wholesale by Bryan on account of other towns building good roads, we ask, was that action wise? The county judge and commissioners court were endorsed in their road policy by that meeting, which was all very well. But because they are doing well with the means at their command is no reason that their means might not be increased, is it? It was stated at that meeting that the citizens of Bryan paid such a share of the taxes of the county, that they had a right to a considerable voice in matters of taxation. Taxation is the fairest means of making burdens that should be borne by all, rest on all alike. Therefore, when twenty-one wagons in one bunch that have heretofore come to Bryan, all go to another railroad town on account of roads, it is time to do something. It is said by some that bad weather is the only cause of our troubles. If Marquez can improve the roads this kind of weather, we ought to be able to do so too. Our correspondent says, "Marquez is greasing the road." We had best grease some of our roads too. If we do not wish to lose our trade, and lose it for good. If trade gets started to other places it will be quite difficult to ever divert it our way again. We had best hold it, and good roads alone will do it.

SERIOUS FOR BRYAN.

Twenty-One Wagons In One Train Diverted From This Market.

Willow Hole, Texas, March 30, —Editor Bryan Eagle:—Twenty-one wagons left this place March 10th for Marquez to load with groceries and feed stuffs. As I feel kindly towards Bryan had much rather had them leave for Bryan.

The people claim bad roads to Bryan cause this change. Bryan should make some effort to have better roads, as soon as she can, for Madisonville is going to shove out her little shingle soon, and Marquez is greasing the road now so it will run slick. I have been going to Bryan since childhood, away back in, say about '69, and this makes me feel like Bryan is home.

I will give you a little sketch of how times were back those days. On one occasion my father and I went to Bryan and father having business at Hearne, he took me with him on the train to Hearne. This was the first railroad I ever saw. When we got our tickets and mounted the grand old H. & T. C., I felt like we had almost bought her out.

The first buggy I ever rode in was made by Mr. T. D. Williamson. Madison county only had three buggies at this time, and they were put up by Williamson and cost $225.00 each. The county had very few men that wore bald-faced shirts at this time, but she had plenty of fat hogs and cattle and money; and everybody loved his neighbor. I went to school in a log house with a dirt floor, and everybody went to Bryan those days and we had a grand good old time. Everybody had what they wanted and owed nobody for it.

Those days went from us like a dream. In those days we knew nothing of a mortgage. We had very little court those days. M. Y. Randolph was a young man just come into our county, and was appointed county attorney, and Mr. Randolph held justice court at Willow Hole in the woods on a log. M. Y. thought he was the warm medicine those days, and he was the best attorney we had. When we went to Bryan we crossed the river at Folsom's toll bridge.

Mr. F. Wetter put us up some darling wagons those times. Everybody wanted a Wetter wagon.

Hoping to have space in your columns for this, and you will hear from me again.

City Marshal.

The Willacy local option bill that was so bitterly opposed by prohibitionists, has failed of passage.

Garrett Scott's trial for murder in Brenkam resulted yesterday in a verdict for acquittal after the jury had been out only fifteen minutes. G. B. Abercrombie of Bryan was one of the principal witnesses in the case. There are two other cases pending against Mr. Scott.

The agricultural department bill passed the senate Tuesday, in such form that its author in the house, Mr. Stewart, will scarcely recognize it. It was amended, largely through the efforts of Senator Harper of this district, so as to provide that the department shall be connected with the Agricultural and Mechanical College, the board of which college will choose the Secretary, or head of the department. Mr. Harper did well, and deserves to be congratulated.

The house of representatives on Tuesday finally passed the substitute House bill for protection of birds. The Senate passed the bill finally without amendment. The bill makes it illegal to kill; catch or have in one's possession any wild bird other than game birds, for a period of five years. Game birds are named as wild turkeys, wild ducks, wild geese, wild grouse, wild prairie chickens, wild Mongolian or English pheasants, wild quail or partridges, wild doves, wild pigeons, wild plover, wild snipe, wild jacksnipe and wild curlews. It also protects the nests of birds and their eggs. Open seasons are prescribed for certain of the game birds, as well as for buck deer and antelope.

FAMOUS PIRATES of HISTORY

How Buccaneer Morgan Destroyed A Spanish Fleet

IN the good old days of buccaneers and pirates Venezuela, the little war swept country of the south so much in the public eye of late, was the very special field of the world's most notorious freebooters.

Francis L'Olonnois and Henry Morgan, who remain unequalled for their unlawful daring and skill, and a score of others were sailing 300 years ago the very seas now patrolled by England and Germany, and they were fearlessly pillaging and plundering right and left.

This piracy lasted from 1600 to 1680, during which time England and France were at almost continuous war with Spain.

The richest of all the towns and cities of the Spanish main in those days were La Guayra, a place called Gibrat-and the most inhuman tortures were employed to force these unfortunates to confess where they had hidden their wealth. Some were broken on the rack, while others were tied and burning torches placed between their fingers.

Wary of scenes of bloodshed and suffering, Morgan finally sailed away, but to the dismay of his crew found the entrance to the harbor blocked by three Spanish warships in the same manner that the fleet of Cervera was blockaded in Santiago harbor. They had also rebuilt the fort at the mouth of the harbor.

Undismayed, Morgan coolly removed the plunder and prisoners from his largest vessel to the smaller ships of his fleet and filled it with all the gunpowder, pitch, tar, rosin and other combustibles that he could find in Maracaibo. Then he mounted wooden cannon about over the vessel and covered the decks with posts dressed to resemble men. Having finished all this, he sent word to the Spanish commander stating that unless he paid a heavy ransom for Maracaibo he would burn the place to the ground.

The Spanish admiral replied that unless he surrendered in three days he would enter the harbor and pay the ransom in lead.

This brought matters to a head, and next morning Morgan sailed down the harbor, single file, after the manner of Cervera leaving Santiago harbor, the dummy ship leading, in charge of a few resolute men, who at a signal from Morgan were to apply the match to the fuses and escape in a small boat to the other side.

When the Spanish admiral saw the first vessel of Morgan's squadron coming out of the harbor and heading directly toward him he sailed in to meet him, grappling and making fast to the vessels' sides for what he expected would be a hand to hand conflict.

Then the matches were applied and pandemonium followed. The Spanish admiral could not unfasten the chains and clamps with which he had fastened his own vessel to what he thought was Morgan's flagship, and in a few minutes his own ship was ablaze from stem to stern.

He and the members of his crew jumped overboard to drown rather than to fall into the hands of Morgan, while the two remaining vessels of his fleet were run aground and abandoned by the officers and crews, who fled to the woods.

The fort, farther down the harbor, had still to be passed, but Morgan executed a maneuver which threw the garrison into a state of alarm, causing them to expect an attack in the rear, and to meet this threatened onslaught they removed their cannon to a point some distance from the fort. When this was done Morgan sailed out of the harbor, his sailors jeering at the Spanish garrison, who were unable to bring their ordnance back in time to fire on the bold and resourceful pirate.

Blacksmiths Fight With Iron Bars

Edward Dahlke and Jacob Meyer, two blacksmiths employed in a chain factory in St. Louis, a few days ago became involved in a quarrel and assaulted each other with heavy iron bars.

The men use about their fires heavy pokers two and one-half feet long, looped at one end and flattened at the other, which are made by themselves. Meyer had his in his hand. In a frenzy of anger he rushed on Dahlke and began to rain blows on him. A blow on the head staggered him. He threw up his left arm to ward off the second blow, and the heavy iron fell on his arm, breaking it above the elbow.

By that time he had caught up his own poker and with his uninjured right arm was returning blow for blow. The men fought back and forth between the piles of scrap iron like gladiators of old. Each attacked and parried with the heavy bars of iron as if they had been broadswords. Their desperation gave them skill. Sparks sprang from the contact of weapons and flesh.

They were evenly matched as to strength, although Meyer is sixty years old and Dahlke is only forty-four.

Men in the shop tried to stop them, but there was none brave enough to interpose between the antagonists. An opportunity came when Meyer was crowded back against a pile of iron by Dahlke and fell. He was at the mercy of Dahlke, but before Dahlke could strike a blow he was seized, and both men were disarmed.

HE STOPPED THE BELL.

Good Reason For Giving Him Free Entry to the Show.

The requests for theater favors in the small towns are very troublesome. Every person of local standing feels that he has a right to admission at least, while the trustees and the constable feel that they are entitled to private boxes. Some of the requests are decidedly unique.

Recently a company played a small southern city. The manager was taking the tickets at the door of the theater, and the natives were struggling to get in. "Suddenly," he tells, "a long, thin, bushy chimed individual divided the folding doors with his shoulder and whispered confidentially, 'I stop the bell.' I asked him to repeat, 'I stop the bell,' he said again in a hoarse whisper. 'You will have to see the opera house manager and tell him what you stop,' I said, reaching for tickets. He tripped up several ladies while backing out. Soon the manager of the house came in, saying, 'He's all right; he stops the bell.' I allowed him to go in, and after the people were seated I asked the local man what he meant by 'He stops the bell.' 'Well,' said he, 'this man is the janitor of the town hall, right opposite, and on 'show nights' he does not ring nine or ten on the town clock. You see, he said, 'it would disturb the performance,' and so the poor people do not know what time it is until 11 o'clock, when the opera house is open. If I had 'turned him down' he would have rung out nine and ten every half hour to get even." —Chicago Inter Ocean.

Lincoln the Ideal President.

Lincoln is the ideal president in that he led public sentiment, represented it and followed it. "I claim not to have controlled events," he said, "but confess plainly that events have controlled me." During his term of office he was one day called "very weak" and the next day "a tyrant," but when his whole work was done a careful survey of it could bring one only to the conclusion that he knew when to follow and when to lead. He was in complete touch with popular sentiment and divined with nicety when he could take a step in advance. He made an effort to keep on good terms with congress, and he differed with that body reluctantly, although, when the necessity came, decisively. While he had consideration for those who did not agree with him, and while he acted always with a regard to proportion, he was nevertheless a strong and self confident executive. —James Ford Rhodes in Scribner's.

Killing the Turtle.

Killing a turtle with an arrow seems a very difficult feat, since a very hard shell covers practically all of the animal, yet the natives of the Andaman islands kill huge turtles with arrows as easily as American sportsmen kill rabbits with shot.

Accustomed from their childhood to use bows and arrows, they soon become wonderfully skilled in the use of these primitive weapons, and as they know the places where turtles congregate it is easy for them at any time to bring home a good bag of game. Sometimes they try their skill on large fish, and though the latter are harder to kill than turtles, there are a few islanders who rarely miss their mark.

The bows and arrows are made of native wood and are longer and stronger than those used by European archers.

Fierce Wild Hogs.

The wild hogs of southern Colorado share with the peccaries of Central and South America the reputation of being the fiercest, most vindictive and toughest animals of the western hemisphere. They will follow tenaciously, tree and starve out an enemy. Their skins are tough, their vitality is remarkable and their teeth sharp as razors. They travel in small droves and are ready to attack anything, be it man or beast, that arouses their ire. Hunters in southern Colorado always observe the precaution of stationing themselves within reach of a tree when in the neighborhood of a drove.

Realism.

"De Starr is the great exponent of realism in the drama." "I know; that's why he wouldn't take my play." "What was the matter with your play?" "Why, the hero had a surgical operation performed, and De Starr said if it was done at all it would have to be a real operation, and he couldn't stand for that eight times a week." —Washington Times.

Not Much Difference.

Magistrate—Now, sir, while the evidence is not technically conclusive, I am fully convinced of your guilt, and it will be only a matter of time until you are apprehended and your guilt brought to light.

Prisoner—And then, your honor? Magistrate—Well, then it will be a matter of some more time. —Buffalo Express.

A Rellet.

Husband—Darling, I believe that I am failing.

Wife (in alarm)—Gracious! How often I have warned you, George, against your foolish speculations!

Husband—I don't mean in business, dear; I mean I'm failing in health.

Wife (relieved)—Oh, is that all?

Love In Spectacles.

He—I suppose now that I shall have to ask your father for his consent.

She—No, Harry. After the time you called, pa said I might have you if I wanted you. Pa and I have understood it for a long time. —Boston Transcript.

Only the Right Side.

A photographer was asked the other day if there is any special reason why most photographs show the left side of the face and not the right.

"Yes, there is a reason," he answered. "In a majority of cases the left side is the good looking side, and photographers know this and take advantage of it. On the other hand, if you want to get at the real strength and character of a person's face, man or woman, study the right side of it—the ugly side, as some portrait painters call it. There you will find the lines bold and harsh, comparatively so at any rate, with every defect accentuated. On the left side, however, everything is softened down, and the face is at its best."

"Whenever you suspect a man of trickery or deceit, or a woman either, for that matter, stand on his right and closely watch his expression. There never was an actor skillful enough to cover up the marks of his real personality, as nature has stamped them on the right side of his face."

"Lunnon" Likes It "Ot."

It may be that the quality of imagination was lacking in the Boston and Salem merchants who attempted in 1842 to introduce American ice into London. One of them tried to attain this end by demonstrating the merits of American ice drinks. He hired a hall, as the story goes, and trained a number of men to mix the cool beverages of his native land. The members of the Fishmongers' association, presumably as fond of turtle as aldermen themselves, were the guests. The waiters made an imposing entry, but, alas, the first sound that met the ear of the American "promoter," expecting a chorus of approval, was that of an English voice calling for hot water and saying, "I prefer it, all in all." The American completes the story, "I made a dead rush for the door, next day settled my bills in London, took train for Liverpool and the steamer for Boston and counted up a clear loss of $1,200." —M. A. De Wolfe Howe in Atlantic.

The Charge at Marengo.

As an instance of magnificent blundering, sung by poets and treasured in story, no record is ever likely to come up to that of the Light brigade in the Crimean war. But, perhaps, most remarkable was Kellerman's charge at Marengo. From daybreak till late afternoon the Austrians had the best of it. Desaix said to Napoleon, "The battle is completely lost," adding, "but it is only 4 o'clock. There is time to gain another one." A little later Kellerman with 400 mounted sabers—carefully hidden by a vineyard till the fateful moment arrived—dashed out upon the flank of the Hungarian infantry. The onset was irresistible. Two thousand imperial soldiers surrendered with their general, and the French, inspired to a final effort, wrested a brilliant victory—unique, even in Napoleon's career—from their opponents.

In Doubt.

In one of Wilkie Collins' published letters he writes:

For the last week while I was finishing the story I galloped along without feeling it, like the old post horses. Do you remember how the fore legs of those post horses quivered, and how their heads drooped when they came to the journey's end? That's me, my dear; that's me. Good gracious, is "me" grammar? Ought it to be "I"? My poor father paid £90 a year for my education, and I give you my sacred word of honor I am not sure whether it is "me" or "I."

Personal Magnetism.

Two men address an assembly on the same topic and in nearly the same words. One is listened to with indifference, if at all; the other stirs to every fiber our being and our souls thrill responsive to his slightest touch. It is not what we hear, nor is it graceful pose or elegant diction; it is nothing comprehensive or tangible, but an invisible, mysterious force which we acknowledge and yield to even against our convictions and reason. This strange attribute is not hereditary, nor can it be acquired.

The Thirsty Elm.

It has been computed that if the leaves of an elm tree sixty feet high were spread out on the ground edge to edge they would cover five acres of land. These leaves, averaging 7,000,000 to a full grown tree, will absorb water to the amount of seven tons during the normal summer day. Were it not for the ingathering by the stomata during the night a few elms would soon draw off all the water from a district.

The Modest Actor.

"Shakespeare took some great risks in his dramatic effects," said the literary analyst.

"He did, indeed," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, with the innocent egotism of genius. "For instance, when he wrote his plays he had no idea that I would be born to see that they were properly produced."

Could Live on Love.

Father—The idea of marrying that young fellow! He couldn't scrape enough money together to buy a square meal.

Daughter—But what difference need that make? We haven't either of us had a bit of appetite for months.

Troubles of a Manager.

D. H. L. BONNER TELLS BRAZOS COUNTY FARMERS WHAT CAN BE DONE.

Introductory.

Col. D. H. L. Bonner addressed the meeting in the afternoon. Quite a number of Allen Academy students being in evidence by invitation, the speaker addressed his opening remarks to them, and delivered a feeling exhortation to the boys, telling them how to live and conduct themselves that they may get the full benefit of the opportunity they enjoy of becoming educated and useful men. This talk to the boys exhibited the strong character and tender heart of the plain and unassuming old gentleman, who is happily gifted with the power of ready speech, and whose language is always dignified and strong.

Crop Diversification.

Mr. Bonner's main efforts are directed against the one crop idea, which he plainly showed impoverishes our farming population. If cotton is a king, Col. Bonner showed that he is a despotic one, and his subjects, the farmers, are abject slaves who suffer from their bondage. You people in this fair county ought to prosper, said he, with your fertile lands. The farmers of this section should be independent, well fixed financially, free from debt, living in good houses, in short, prosperous. Is this true? Or is the reverse the case? Are you not forced to go into debt for the necessities of life and depend on an unusually good crop to come out even at the end of the year? Do you have good homes, good teams, good farming implements, good schools, with plenty of money to educate your children? The laboring farmers are the men I am talking about. Not the big land owner, who rents out his lands and lives on the labor of others. I speak of the man who labors in the fields with his little children around him, enduring the toils of labor and the privations of a hard lot. I speak of the little children who work all the year round in the cotton fields, doing hard labor, and who look forward to the harvest time in fond anticipation of having some good things that children enjoy—a new suit, a new saddle, a few nice things for the boys, such as boys would enjoy—a pretty new dress for the girls—some musical instrument, and some of the nice things that would make the heart glad. I speak for the wife of your bosom, who has shared your toils, and who is entitled to some of the good things and pleasures of life. She wants flowers in her yard—a nice attractive home, with some of the conveniences and comforts of life. She has a right to them. She is over half of your home. Should she be doomed to a life of drudgery, with nothing bright and beautiful in her surroundings—no money to spend—always helpless, poverty-stricken, always making sacrifices—her back always bent to the burden—never feeling the electric thrill of independence. Do you cotton farmers think you do your full duty by her? I will tell you, that I do not think you do. You say you do the best you can. I do not believe it. I believe there is a better way, and I will try to tell you what it is.

The New Agriculture.

You can raise something else besides cotton. Your soils are adapted to the raising of other things that there is more money in. You may not be able to raise as fine fruit as we grow up in our country, with our red iron ore hills and deep sands, but you can grow alfalfa and raise hogs; you can grow more cow feed, hog and horse feed on one acre of poor land planted to Spanish peanuts than can be raised on the best acre of land in the Brazos bottom planted to corn. I know what I am talking about, for I have been a farmer all my life, working with these old horny hands, and I am telling you what I have done myself, and what I know. You can also grow that matchless money maker, alfalfa, on any old hill in this county—no matter where it is. The richer the land the better, of course, but we are growing alfalfa in our old poor uplands in Smith county. There are stock beets, rape, and other crops you can grow. Now what about these crops when you grow them? Why you can feed them to stock and hogs, poultry etc., and there is a market for every product of this kind you grow at prices that will make money grow in your pockets.

Cut Down Your Acreage.

Cut your acreage down and fertilize and cultivate properly fewer acres and you will do better work, and make more money. And it will improve you mentally, morally and financially. The diversifier is a more intelligent man, of necessity, than the cotton grower. He gets in the habit of reading, and watching the markets, and discussing the new thoughts and new ideas, and it broadens the mind. The force of laborers and teams and money spent in raising ten bales of cotton will, if directed right, raise crops that will grow and fatten enough hogs, and chickens, and calves, and make enough good pure butter to make home life much more pleasant and profitable. You can grow crops like tomatoes and cabbage, and if you will study this business and co-operate, you can market them to advantage. Join the Texas Fruit and Vegetable Exchange.

Texas Fruit and Vegetable Exchange.

The speaker told how California had been raising worlds of fruit for twenty-five years, and had shipped it all over America, and her people had grown rich at it, and had never glutted a market. The people right here in your town buy their grapes, and their oranges. Did you ever hear of their products being sold at glutted market prices? Well, we have studied their plans and formed an association of their kind in Texas, with headquarters at Jacksonville. Ten dollars worth of stock in the association, payable $1.00 down and the rest in installments, entitles any association or individual to participation with all its benefits. This association directs the destination of every car of stuff that leaves an east Texas market, and it is seen to that that car goes to the right place, and is handled by a man who is a member of our association. He himself is subject to a system of checking, and there will be no more commission merchant thievery, resulting in loss to Texas shippers.

Buy a Cannery.

You can grow tomatoes, and can them yourselves on the farm. You can can up fruits and vegetables. The speaker here told of a cannery that can be bought for ten dollars that will can 200 cans of tomatoes or 300 cans of peaches or 600 cans of berries a day. He told of common farmers in East Texas who are canning these articles on their own farms and selling them in the markets and making money at it. It is a revolution in the cannery business, but the speaker showed that it is as true as remarkable.

Rich in Resources.

Your county is rich in resources, and farmers here have almost unlimited opportunities to select from. There is the Irish potato of which you can grow two crops a year—the sweet potato, of which you can grow 200 bushels to the acre. They are worth a dollar a bushel right here now on your streets, and cannot be had at that. One of your merchants had a demand by wire for a carload of them this week. You can save them, too, if you will prepare for it. Yet with these opportunities inviting you to a prosperous career, you are out here in the country with a little piece of land, engaged in a cat-and-dog fight with the boll weevil for a few bales of cotton. The speaker told how to plant and grow a profitable orchard. He said if you have a piece of land with the red iron ore soil, you have an independent fortune in peaches. Buy cheap one-year-old trees from a reliable Texas nurseryman, give them proper attention, and I would rather have that orchard four years from now than to have one of those Beaumont oil wells. He told how to select the trees as to varieties. In response to a question he said the budded trees are the only ones to buy for a commercial orchard, as they ripen evenly, and the talk about seedling trees being longer lived than the budded trees is all erroneous; that is, a good spring budded tree. He told what shortens the life of trees and how to avoid the mistakes.

A Danger Ahead.

There are thrifty people of other nationalities and other parts of our own country who know how to farm according to modern principles, and they are coming in here and will supplant the old American stock if the latter does not move out of the old ruts and up into the light of the modern progress. They are settling all about

Neighboring Communities

HARVEY.

Harvey, Texas, March 30.—The all day singing Sunday was a grand success, a large crowd and plenty to eat. Miss Jodie Creed of Minter Spgs. is attending school here now. Mr. Jessie Hensling and his sister, Minnie, were here Sunday. Miss Laura Mims, Miss Lizzie Powers and Mr. Tolbert Bullock were over Sunday to attend the singing. Mr. Will McClung has returned home from Bell county where he has been teaching school. Miss Fannie McClung returned home from Minter Springs last week. Misses Mary Ferguson, Sunshine Cole, Susie Graham and Donnie Andrews spent Saturday and Sunday at home. Cotton planting is the order of the day. Mud.

RELIANCE.

Reliance, Tex., March 30, 1903.—Rev. J. M. Bullock preached at Reliance church the fifth Sunday, on account of the Fifth Sunday Meeting being postponed. Mr. Robt. Bullock of Maverick, Runnels county, is here visiting relatives. Mrs. Minnie Dansby of Steep Hollow spent last week visiting homefolks in this community. Misses Lula Griffith and Maggie Simpson went to Bryan last Friday. Mrs. Mary Lloyd and daughter, Miss Fannie, of Kurten were here in east Texas, and they are making from one hundred to five hundred dollars per acre on our old poor lands! This is not theory, or talk, but it's facts. I have a neighbor, a young man, who starting without a cent, has bought and paid for a little farm, and is making money and putting it in bank. He was offered $75.00 per month salary to superintend a government experiment farm and turned it down, because he said he would lose money by it. The common farmers all over my section are saving money and building bank accounts. Think of it! a common old farmer out in the hills lending money to merchants in town and watching their business to see if his money is safe! Talk about the poor down-trodden farmer. Why he can be a lord of creation, if he will try. About the third year after they began diversification up in my country, they got to wearing such good clothes that you can't tell one of them from a drummer.

The speech of Mr. Bonner was one that no farmer in Brazos county should have missed, yet there were but few farmers out to hear it. The thing for our farmers to do, in the opinion of this writer, is to build up this Brazos County Farmers' Institute; attend its meetings, and encourage the officials of the state institute so they will send good men here to educate us in the new agriculture. Let us have a good meeting at Kurten the 24th of this month, well attended from all over the county by the farmers and their wives and daughters. We need the ladies to attend these meetings as well as the men. A good program is being arranged. Let everybody come and bring a basket, have dinner on the ground, and an all-day time of it.

MINTER SPRINGS.

School closed here March 24th, with a picnic and congratulations to our teacher, Miss Fannie McClung, to whose efficient management we are indebted for a successful term. Farmers are making rapid strides toward the completion of their land breaking exercise for 1903. Some corn planting has been done but quite a considerable acreage yet to plant. Some oats planted late but looking well. And now comes the cotton trap rows, or trap rows for cotton, perhaps the weevil got drowned. Grass is very fine now and cattle are recovering from hardships imposed by an unusually severe winter. As we may have other winters of equal severity, we would suggest a little discussion about providing shelter and feed for the poor animals which furnish such a large per cent of the capital of the country. Along with truck growing, canning factories and good roads, let us talk a little about the cow shed, and something to feed to the cows when another rainy season sets in. Success to the Eagle.

STRUGGLE A SUCCESS

Attempt to Hold Pontchartrain District Levees Gratifying.

APPEAL IS ANSWERED

Additional Men and Money Have Been Received at Hymela and Results of a Satisfactory Character Are Secured.

New Orleans, April 1.—With a fall of two-tenths of a foot in twenty-four hours and encouraging news from the scene of the struggle at Hymela, river conditions are considerably improved. The only disquieting news of Tuesday was the reported break at Angola, but the importance of this break was minimized to some extent by the news that the damage resulting would be largely confined to the state farm located there. The eleven miles of levees protecting Angola have cost approximately $100,000. A desperate struggle had been in progress there for the last week to hold the embankment, but water has been steadily seeping through it and the conditions had grown so critical by the end of the week that President Parker of the board of control had ordered the removal of the stock and the bulk of the convicts into the Tunica hills as a matter of precaution and steps taken to protect it has been the aim of the levee boards. The levee is located nearly opposite the mouth of Red river and the water will ultimately find its way back into the Mississippi, increasing the flood wave south of Baton Rouge.

Good results attended the work at Hymela Tuesday and the answer to the appeal of the board for additional men and money had been answered. Large quantities of material went forward. By Tuesday evening the cribbing at the upper end of the broken end of the levee had reached the willows on the batture and extended out 1000 feet on the lower end. The real test will come when it is attempted to join the ends and beginning the work of sacking. A hopeful feeling prevails at the scene and the chance of closing the break is fair. The extent of inundated land gradually increases and the situation will be as desperate one for the sugar planters and truck farmers if disaster comes now.

Success continues to attend the struggle to hold the levees of the Pontchartrain district. President Leake of the levee board and Assistant Engineer Lewis went back to the scene after a brief trip to the city. They said a persistent fight was being kept up to undo the work of crawfish, which threatens a number of points in the district. While much of this stretch has still a safe margin above the present flood there are other levees in it which they are likely to be required to sustain.

Millions are invested in sugar property in the district and two great railroads lines lie in it and it is these interests which have united with the levee board to protect the Pontchartrain basin.

The reading of the river here Friday morning was 20.2, a decline of a tenth from Monday. There was a further fall of a tenth during the day.

Better at Greenville.

Greenville, Miss., April 1.—The flood situation both in Greenville and surrounding territory shows improvement and there is little apprehension of further complications. The water is falling generally in the city. The suffering and distress has been greatly relieved and the work towards preventing further widening of the two crevasses to the south of the city is meeting with better success. One of the electric light companies has resumed and this has been beneficial in its cheering influence.

Costly Dog Feed.

Natchez, Miss., April 1.—The river fell 5 in twenty-four hours and reports from the levees are most gratifying and satisfactory. The Callad Sporting club secured the conviction of a white fisherman on a charge of killing a deer which had been driven to this side from Louisiana on account of high water. The man was caught feeding venison to his dogs and the meat was found in his boat. He was given the limit, $25 and thirty days in jail.

CORBETT VICTOR.

For the Second Time He Defeats the Redoubtable McGovern.

San Francisco, April 1.—For the second time young Corbett proved victor over Terry McGovern, defeating the latter Tuesday night in the eleventh round. The fight was a very one and both men were punished. In the last round the men went into a clinch immediately. Corbett missed a left hook and got a hard left on ear. He uppercut heavily with right to stomach. McGovern forced but Corbett ducked his left and sent in a terrific right to the ribs and a second later a left to the jaw and a left to the eye. Corbett rushed and slipped down, but got up immediately. McGovern put in a right hard to ribs and both slipped down. Corbett put a left on McGovern's jaw and Terry nearly went out. Corbett, seeing McGovern's distress, rushed and getting McGovern in a neutral corner, swung right, left and right to the jaw. McGovern's knees wobbled and his head sank. Corbett, steadying himself swung his right squarely on McGovern's jaw and the little Brooklyn fighter went squarely on his back, his head striking the floor with a thud. He lifted his head at the count of three, turned over and looked at the timekeepers, his eyes glassy and rolling. As the timekeeper called seven he attempted to get on his feet, but he was unable to do so. Just after the timekeepers called ten McGovern, dazed and clearly gone, got to his feet. But he was an instant too late. Referee Graney swung his hands in the air as a signal that the fight was over and that Corbett had retained the championship. In an instant a terrific uproar took place. McGovern's backers, maddened by the sight of their favorite being dragged to his corner a defeated man, swarmed around and into the ring. They were not quicker than the policemen, however, who piled pell mell through the ropes. For five minutes the uproar continued. Then the lights were turned down and the crowd filed out.

Eddie Graney of this city was referee.

PRESIDENT OFF.

Chief Executive Starts on His Long Trip to the Far West.

Washington, April 1.—President Roosevelt at 9:05 o'clock this morning started on his western trip under most favorable auspices. As the special train pulled out of the Pennsylvania station the president stood on the platform of his private car, tipping his hat and smiling in response to the enthusiastic cheers of hundreds of admirers and personal friends. As early as 8 o'clock the crowd began to gather at the white house to witness the president's departure. As he entered the carriage to drive to the station, men made the historic grounds resound with cheers, while women waved their handkerchiefs and many of them their hats. The Pennsylvania station and platforms were crowded with people anxious to extend to the chief magistrate their good wishes for a safe and successful journey. Notable precautions were taken to insure the safety of the president, the police arrangements being under the personal supervision of Commissioner West and Chief Sylvester. Uniformed officers, headquarters detectives, plain clothes men and secret service operatives surrounded the president and covered every point.

As President Roosevelt alighted from the carriage he was joined by Secretary Hitchcock and they walked down the station platform arm in arm, the president stopping now and then to greet personal friends. He was attired in a black cutaway coat, dark striped trousers and wore a black hat. He was in the best of spirits, chatting enthusiastically with friends of the trip on which he was about to start. Near the private car he met Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German minister, who had come to see him off. They had several minutes' conversation.

CRIBBING HOLDS.

Plenty of Men Hard at Work and Activity Is Great.

New Orleans, April 1.—The cribbing work at Hymela held throughout Tuesday night and the extension of the two lines is being prosecuted with vigor. Plenty of men are now on the scene, the Southern Pacific carrying thither, a force of sixty and Waggonmen sending 150. Now the strong hope of closing the break, planters are, scraping together all hands and placing them at the disposal of those who are directing the struggle. A small army of men is now engaged filling sacks with earth, and it is expected that over 200,000 will be ready when the call is made for them. The river here stood at 20.1, same as Tuesday night. All levees on the west bank of the river from the Arkansas line to Hymela crevasse are reported in excellent condition. Armed citizens and guards continue to patrol them to warn away and would-be cutters.

Water from Howell crevasse, on La Fourche, is threatening some of the highlands of that basin.

Reports from Red river indicate a falling stream, and State Engineer Kerr thinks the river will be within its banks in the next week or ten days. The crevasse at Cross Keys, on Red river, will not do much damage.

Rails Placed on Track.

Montgomery, Ala., April 1.—Passenger train No. 3 on the Louisville and Nashville railway, southbound, which left Montgomery at 9:30 Tuesday night, was wrecked two miles south of Sparta. It is reported the entire train left the track and Pullmans and day coaches were ditched and badly smashed. No one was hurt, although it is stated several members of the crew sustained slight bruises. It is said the wreck was caused by rails having been misplaced by vandals.

Chicago, April 1.—Sultan, the half-grown Indian elephant of Ringling Bros.' menagerie, died in a box car just before being taken to the Coliseum. With the herd of forty the little seven-foot elephant had just arrived from Baraboo, the winter quarters of the circus. While being carried across Wisconsin "Sultan" was taken with a chill. At one of the stations all the whisky which could be secured in the town was made into a hot toddy for the animal.

ARMING OF ALBANIANS

They Had Demanded the Surrender of Eleven Servians.

LATTER ARE GIVEN UP

Growing Fanaticism Against Christians Has Caused the Murder of Many and Numbers of Others Have Fled.

Constantinople, April 1.—Details of the disturbances in north Albania show the revolt which has broken out there against the reform scheme of the powers is of a very serious nature. Several thousand armed Albanians surrounded the town of Vousteen, on the Mitrovitzka-Uskub railroad, March 29, and demanded the surrender of eleven Servian gendarmes, who had been enlisted in accordance with the reform plans. The governor surrendered the Servians, who were bound and taken to Pristina, after having been maltreated. A number of Servian inhabitants and bands of Albanians later surrounded Mitrovitzka, and serious fighting ensued with the Turkish garrison, consisting of 3000 troops. The fighting continued until March 30, when the Albanians were finally repulsed with great loss.

Heavy reinforcements have been ordered from Vilayet, from Asia Minor and other places to the scene of the outbreak in order to suppress the rebellion. The Albanian rising caused a panic among the Christians of old Servia, who are fleeing toward Servia.

A panic occurred at Prilep in consequence of the growing fanaticism of the Albanians against the Christians. The latter closed their shops and schools and are preparing to seek refuge at Monastir. Numbers of Christians have been murdered in the Prilep district during the last few days.

Considerable apprehension is felt at the Russian embassy for the safety of M. Sticherbina, consul of Russia at Mitrovitzka. The outbreak has made a great impression at the palace. The sultan is intensely exercised and measures will be immediately taken to watch the Albanian battalions belonging to the imperial guard on duty at Yildiz Kiosk, in order to prevent disorder at the palace.

CRUM IN CHARGE.

He Assumes the Duties of Collector of Customs at Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., April 1.—W. D. Crum took charge of the custom house Tuesday morning as collector of the port, having taken the oath of office Monday night. There was no incident of interest in connection with his assuming the office except the immediate tender of resignation by the chief inspector of customs, which had been placed in the hands of the deputy collector to take effect upon the colored official's entrance to authority.

There has been some talk here of possible application to the courts for a restraining order against Crum's exercising the duties of office, on the ground that the president may not fill vacancies except with the advice and consent of the senate where the senate has opportunity to pass upon nominations, as was the case with the Crum appointment. It is understood that the matter has been brought to the notice of the mayor and it is said he has referred it to the corporation council for consideration and report, but it is not thought anything will be done about it.

Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, thus exposing the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucin instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.
